'WE CAN REBUILD ALL OVER AGAIN'

Prime Minister's pledge on visit to see what was ruined by rioters

THE Prime Minister visited Tottenham last week to see for himself the aftermath of the riots which devastated the area.

Mr Cameron was invited by Tottenham MP David Lammy, who had asked the PM to visit during an emergency session of Parliament, recalled from its summer recess as rioting and looting spread from Tottenham to other parts of London and then to other cities.

During his visit last Tuesday, Mr Cameron held private meetings with those whose lives have been most affected by the disturbances, which left homes burned down and shops looted bare.

Mr Lammy said: "I am pleased the Prime Minister came to Tottenham to see the suffering and hear the anger of local people first hand.

"I know there will have been plenty for him to consider on his way back to Downing Street. The residents, businesses and emergency services who met him were very clear about the concerns they had before that Saturday night and since and I fully expect him to address those issues.

"I have made it clear that I want to work with the government to secure the investment and the support that Tottenham residents and businesses will need to get back on their feet. I know that the Prime Minister was moved by what he heard today and I call on him to grant us the support that we so desperately need."

Mr Cameron also toured the Community Assistance Centre at Tottenham Green Leisure Centre, which has been set up by Haringey Council to help residents and businesses affected by the rioting and looting.

Mr Cameron said: "I wanted to hear about some of the things experienced and some of the things we need to learn from it.

"It was an incredibly challenging situation, particularly here in Tottenham. I've been all over the country hearing about what happened, but this is where things started. It was complicated and made difficult by the tragic killing of Mark Duggan. It's been a difficult situation."

He added: "There is a major effort at rebuilding going on. I've been to the leisure centre and seen the community come together with great co-ordination. We can rebuild all over again."

The High Road area most affected by the rioting was also visited separately by the Deputy Prime Minister, Nick Clegg, while Prince Charles also visited the assistance centre.

Claire Kober, the council leader, said: "We welcomed Mr Cameron's visit to the assistance centre, where he was able to witness first hand a fraction of the fantastic community spirit which has abounded in Tottenham since the disturbances.

"The response from local people has been overwhelming, with residents of all walks of life showing huge generosity, not just through donations of food, clothing and money, but also of their own spare time to support those most affected by the troubles.

"Having experienced Tottenham's unique sense of community, I hope that Mr Cameron took away a strong sense of how vital it is that the government provides ongoing support to help residents and businesses move forward with their lives.

"Our priority now is to rebuild Tottenham for everyone who lives and works here. To do that, it is essential that the government gives urgent financial assistance to the efforts to get the area and the community so harmed by these devastating events back on their feet.

"Together with partners, the council has worked tirelessly to improve Tottenham over the past 25 years and it is so important for that good work to be able to continue. To enable that to happen, investment by central government both now and in the longer term is essential."

Young people work to battle negative image

YOUNG people have taken to the streets to repair damage from the riots – in stark contrast to the public perception of teenagers running amok generated by images of violence and criminality.

Members of the volunteer police cadets and other uniformed youth groups visited businesses and residents in some of the worst affected areas last week, including Tottenham.

Cadets in Haringey spent two days painting and decorating boarded-up shop fronts in Tottenham High Road, visiting care homes and giving crime prevention advice to residents.

Events across London were organised by YOU (Youth Organisations in Uniform) London and Youth United to remind communities of the positive contribution that most young people can and do make to our city.

There are about 90,000 young volunteers who are members of uniformed youth organisations in London, and 1.25million nationally as part of Youth United. Across London this week young people will also be giving the public information on how they can volunteer to help run a uniformed youth group to provide similar opportunities for more young Londoners.

Marie-Chantale Dable, 16, from the Broadwater Farm estate, said: "I've been a volunteer police cadet since I was 14 – before that I used to get into trouble. I applied to be a cadet myself to change things and I wanted to see things how officers see them. Now I can see things both ways. I would like to be a police officer."

Jamilla Walcott, a 16-year-old Crouch End resident, has been a volunteer police cadet for three years and witnessed the disturbances first-hand while visiting a relative in Croydon. She said: "I was shocked when I saw it on the news, and I looked out of the window and saw the Reeves furniture store on fire. I don't think that anything can justify what happened – people took advantage of a situation."

£16k donated to help riot victims

A FUND set up to help people affected by the Tottenham riots has attracted donations of £16,000 in just a few days.

This figure includes both money paid directly into the fund, set up by Haringey Council, and other generous donations made at the Community Assistance Centre which was set up in the wake of the riots to support residents.

Major retailers such as Mothercare, Tesco, Asda and Waitrose have also made contributions.

The Community Assistance Centre has seen more than 200 people since opening, with a range of council and community teams helping with everything from rehousing of homeless families to insurance and legal advice.

Making a contribution

CONTRIBUTIONS can be made to the fund, set up to help people in Haringey affected by the disturbances:

By cheque – payable to: Mayor's Special Fund – Tottenham Fund. And mailed to London Borough of Haringey, PO Box 55235, London, N22 9DF.

Tottenham reaps the benefit of £20m fund to rebuild businesses

TOTTENHAM is to benefit from a £20million boost to funding to regenerate businesses in the capital affected by the riots.

The additional government funding, announced by London Mayor Boris Johnson, brings the total of his fund to regenerate riot-hit businesses to £70m.

The London Enterprise Fund will be invested by the mayor to focus specifically on the regeneration of Tottenham, which had already been identified as a priority by the mayor before it was appallingly damaged during the riots.

This additional money follows the launch last week of a £50m fund to help make major long-term improvements to the capital's town centres and high streets that have been damaged.

Allocation of money could include investment in transport infrastructure, buying up and rebuilding affected properties and funding business-rate relief, as well as supporting employment.

Mr Johnson said: "We will rebuild and repair every part of our city that has been damaged and help London's businesses get back on their feet. For the most badly affected areas, Tottenham

Rebuild: Boris Johnson unveiled the package while visiting the area and Croydon, it is vital we also use the opportunity to deliver long-term improvements and create new jobs and skills that will benefit these communities for generations to come. We can not only restore these town centres but create better, more prosperous places to live, work and invest in."

Community spirit: Volunteers help to clean up the streets after the riots

Community pulls together to clean up the streets following the devastation of looting

SHOPKEEPERS gave volunteers an ovation at the weekend as they cleaned up riot-hit Tottenham in an outpouring of community spirit.

In the wake of the violence and looting that stunned residents and devastated homes and businesses, scores of people took up brooms, bin bags and shovels and swept through the High Road, clearing litter and debris and visiting shops.

Dozens of residents, traders and councillors responded to a rallying cry to demonstrate unity and help get Tottenham back on its feet. Traders applauded and passing cars sounded their horns in support as the volunteers made their way along the High Road from Lansdowne Road to Monument Way.

Staff from Haringey Council's waste contractor Veolia passed through on rubbish trucks to scoop up the collected bags of waste.

Claire Kober, leader of the council, said: "The turnout for the community clear-up on Saturday was tremendous. It showed the world the true face of Tottenham – a vibrant, united neighbourhood where people from all walks of life take pride in their community."

"The scenes we saw here were devastating, but the community response has been truly uplifting. People have been so generous – donating not just clothing, household items and money, but also freely giving their own spare time to help clear up the area."

Hundreds of people have visited or contacted the Community Assistance Centre in Tottenham Green Leisure Centre since it was set up by the council in the wake of the riots. Ms Kober added: "I am confident that, with the fantastic backing of residents and traders, we can get Tottenham back on its feet."

Tube station gets special protection with listed status

By Rachel Schraer

WOOD GREEN Tube station has been granted Grade II listed building status, in order to protect its historical integrity.

John Penrose, government minister for tourism and heritage, has also acted on English Heritage advice to list Hendon Central station as a Grade II building.

Nearby Arnos Grove and Oakwood have been upgraded from Grade II to II*, to denote particular architectural importance, alongside Southgate, which was listed as Grade II* in 2009.

Simon Thurley, the chief executive of English Heritage, said: "These stations are as valuable to London's architectural story as are many more famous buildings."

"Heritage is a very important part of our identity at London Underground," said the Tube's commercial and strategy director, Richard Parry.

"The Tube is undergoing a huge upgrade to its ageing infrastructure to cope with increasing demand, but when we modernise a station we make sure we take care of its historical features.

"This might include restoring original tiling or maintaining much-loved lamps and elegant clocks while also installing the latest CCTV or digital display boards."

Mr Penrose said: "Millions of people pass through London's Underground system every day, often with little thought for the historic design and architectural features right under their nose as they hurry to catch their trains.

Valuable: Wood Green Tube is now listed

"Tube stations are great examples of the capital's hidden heritage. Although listing does not mean stations will remain unchanged for all time, it does mean any redevelopment plans will have to take their heritage into account and will ensure the best of their design is preserved for the future."

Diversity of delights abound at the Lane

AN EDINBURGH hit, a festival of puppetry and the return of an award-winning theatre company are among highlights of Jacksons Lane's new season.

Rapidly gaining a name for itself for circus, cabaret and physical theatre, the Highgate venue launches its new season next Wednesday with a characteristically maverick choice, The History Of The Pomegranate from Lewis Barfoot.

The one-woman show combines the classical and whimsical in its tale of the fruit that condemned Persephone to six months in the underworld, but is also a fertility and good luck symbol.

It's followed by one of the longest show runs the Lane has hosted in Bette & Joan: The Final Curtain from September 6 to 24. Direct from the Edinburgh Festival, where it has been selling out nightly, this is the London premiere of the suitably catty show about Hollywood queen bee legends Bette Davis and Joan Crawford.

The Awake Project and Infectious Theatre are up next before a welcome return for Redcape Theatre, which two years ago staged an exceptional show, The Idiot Colony, and is returning with a piece about Alzheimer's, synchronised swimming and England's disappearing coastal towns. Called 1 Beach Road, it runs from October 19 to 22.

Then there's a return for The Insect Circus before Jacksons Lane hosts shows from the London Puppetry Festival, last seen two years ago. The first week in November will be devoted to puppets of every type and taste as companies Pickled Image, Maison Foo, Little Angel and Puppet Grinder show the merits of having strings attached.

Shaken with delight by a special Branch

The Gannets

The Olive Branch
222 Green Lanes, Palmers Green
020 8886 3688

THE morning had been spent with young Gannet No1 doing expensive things young gannets sometimes demand. It had been fun, but energetic, and both Daddy Gannet and Gannet No1 needed a good feed.

Claims in these pages a few weeks ago that The Olive Branch in Palmers Green was child-friendly, seemed good enough. That its gargantuan, gorgeous milkshakes were lauded over was clearly secondary for a seasoned gannet.

We arrived out of the pouring rain to be greeted by a pleasant waitress who gave us a choice of tables despite it being pretty busy. So, we plonked ourselves down and, oh, look, milkshakes...

After ordering a Maltesers shake for Gannet No1 and a grown-up Galaxy one (£3.95 each) for Daddy Gannet, we took our time with the rest of the menu. And while it may not be the most expansive Greek menu you are likely to see, it all looked pretty sound.

Gannet No1 opted for a spaghetti bolognese from the children's menu (£3.25) while I couldn't resist the House Special Chicken (£7.95) – if a place prides itself on a dish then I expect it to rise to the challenge.

We also plumped for starters of chicken wings (£3.50) and calamari (£4.95), although it was a bit disconcerting when Gannet No1's spag bol turned up before the starters.

But I suppose it makes sense to serve kids early so they can plough through it. And plough is the right word. How do kids get spag bol on their foreheads? It happens every time, but you never see them do it.

With the succulent starters seen off sharpish, House Special Chicken turned up and OMG!, as the kids say. There were piles of great chips, the freshest of salads and four sausage-like rolls of chicken and spices so tasty that I could have eaten them for a week.

Taking root: The Olive Branch and, top, one of its amazing milkshakes

The Olive Branch chefs clearly concentrate on ensuring their limited selection is cooked to perfection.

The food really did blow us away. Gannet No1 polished off her spag bol, while I'm ashamed to admit I had to ask for a doggy bag to make sure that brilliant House Special Chicken didn't go to waste.

If you want a hearty feast, especially on a cold and wet afternoon, The Olive Branch is beyond superb.

● Opening hours: 9am to 11pm, seven days a week.

Photographer

(Fixed term appointment until December 23, 2011)

A rare photographer's position has become available at North London & Herts Newspapers.
The photographer will work alongside the chief photographer and be expected to consistently produce high-quality images for all our titles, including The Enfield Gazette and Advertiser, The Barnet Press series and The Haringey Advertiser.
The candidate for this position must be self-motivated and well organised, with the flexibility to juggle priorities.
The ideal candidate will be NCTJ-qualified, have their own laptop and must be able to edit digital images and transmit them using appropriate technology. In return we offer a competitive salary, digital kit and a company car.
This is a fixed term appointment with the contract running until December 23, 2011.

Apply with CV, covering letter and examples of your work to editor Gary O'Keeffe by Wednesday August 31, 2011.

Email your application to: Gary.okeeffe@nlhnews.co.uk

Chief Sub-Editor

(Fixed term contract until December 23, 2011)

We're looking for a senior sub-editor who is ready to step up to the next level. We need a talented chief sub-editor who can write great headlines, sub with style, has brilliant design skills and a meticulous eye for detail. The chief sub-editor will be expected to work alongside the editor ensuring quality is maintained for all titles, including The Enfield Gazette and Advertiser, The Barnet Press series and The Haringey Advertiser. The chief sub-editor will co-ordinate and manage the editorial team in the editor's absence.

This is a fixed term appointment with the contract running until December 23, 2011.

If you've got the talent, energy and enthusiasm to take on this challenging role, apply with CV and covering letter to editor Gary O'Keeffe by Wednesday August 31, 2011.

MODRIC SAGA RUMBLES ON

By Dominique Stafford

TOTTENHAM HOTSPUR manager Harry Redknapp is confident that he can get Luka Modric back in the right frame of mind to play for the club if he does not move to Chelsea before the transfer window shuts next week.

The wantaway Croatia midfielder was left out of Spurs' squad for their 3-0 defeat at Manchester United in their opening Premier League match on Monday night, with the manager claiming his head was not in the right place to play.

Modric has made his desire to move to Stamford Bridge clear over the summer, and Chelsea – who have already had two bids rejected – are expected to make a renewed offer this week.

But Redknapp insists that he believes the talented playmaker could still have a future at White Hart Lane.

"If anyone can pick him up I can," he said. "I have a great relationship with him. People have to understand it is not an easy situation.

"If someone offered to treble anyone's wages, they would find it difficult wherever they worked. That is the situation the boy is in.

"Some players can handle it, but I know players who have caused havoc in the dressing room in order to get a move. I have seen it so many times, but he wouldn't cause anyone a problem. He just got confused with it all."

Modric was one of a number of key players missing on Monday as an injury-hit Spurs side fell away badly in the closing stages after holding their own in the first half – with goals from Danny Welbeck, Anderson and Wayne Rooney giving the champions an ultimately comfortable win.

Redknapp added: "I felt we were right in the game, and certainly at half-time I thought it was a match we had as much chance of winning as they did.

"We were going well in the second half with no real problems, but we conceded a goal and then we opened up. The goal changed the game and gave them confidence."

Tottenham's tough start to the season continues on Sunday when they host early leaders Manchester City (1.30pm).

Unsettled star: Luka Modric was left out of the Spurs squad on Monday night

Nicou the hero as Boro' ease to win in FA Cup

CENTRAL defender Nick Nicou showed off his goalkeeping skills to help Haringey Borough progress to the preliminary round of the FA Cup by beating AFC Kempston Rovers 2-0 at Coles Park on Saturday.

Darrell Cox and Rakim Richards scored the goals, but it was skipper Nicou who was the hosts' real hero in this extra-preliminary round clash.

Having already seen first-choice keeper Nick Christofi suffer an injury during the warm-up, Borough endured a further blow when his replacement Isaac Capello-Rukundo was forced off with 30 minutes left – leading to Nicou taking over between the posts.

But the defender rose to the occasion by dealing confidently with a series of high crosses, while an excellent display from the home rearguard ensured that he was never seriously tested by goalbound efforts.

The hosts had taken the lead shortly before the interval when Cox latched on to Jamie Brandon's defence-splitting pass and calmly slotted past advancing keeper Dan Green.

Cox was then denied by a goal-line clearance, while Richards was unlucky not to double the lead when his header crashed against the post.

However, Borough were not to be denied and their win was secured with 11 minutes remaining when Richards slotted home from 12 yards out.

Haringey Borough will now host Berkhamsted in the next round on September 3.

OFSTED INSPECTION

A GREAT SUCCESS!

HERE IS WHAT OFSTED SAID ABOUT LSC:

"A high proportion of those who apply to higher education are successful, with many students being the first in their family to go to university."

"High levels of personal support from teachers and tutors and effective working with external partners develop students' confidence and self-esteem and raise their aspirations. Students enjoy their experiences at college, finding it a safe and secure environment in which they can flourish."

"The principal has shown outstanding leadership in ensuring that all staff place teaching and learning at the heart of the college's work. This has supported the development of a very positive ethos of high expectations for staff and students."

"Standards of work are good and students develop good subject and vocational skills. Well-planned and suitably demanding assignments and assessments develop students' understanding, raise aspirations and provide a reliable check on progress and knowledge."

"Leyton Sixth Form College is a well-managed college which provide good quality education and care for its students."
